INTRODUCTION 1193895

Ohio Bond 6.00

The issue of this book is in response to a long standing desire and hope expressed by many of the Gill descendants for a permanent and accurate record of the family. We are only attempting to deal with one line starting with Stephen Gill who came into Maryland on his adventure. Many other Gills came to this country through Virginia and Massachusetts, but historical details are not sufficient to identify them. Here we wish to pay tribute to the thoughtfulness of Nicholas Rufus Gill who in 1886, at the urge of other interested members of the family made appropriate entries in his family bible to preserve history, which was a good beginning for this undertaking.

While the Gills were pioneers they stuck to the land, and while Nicholas Rufus Gill and his sons were lawyers they still held their land. John Gill the elder owned a vast domain in Western Run Valley, which was part of Nicholsons Manor. When one of his sons married he was given a farm containing one hundred acres or more. Then as time moved on, the West was opening up to settlers and Nicholas Gill, son of Stephen of John the elder put his family into a covered wagon and in 1818 headed West to settle in Millersport, Ohio, where he had friends. He purchased land and the family prospered. One son went further West and one returned to Maryland. They all stuck to the land, their holdings became vast. At one time three of Nicholas' sons in Ohio owned a total of 3600 acres, which was greater than John Gill held in Maryland.

The Gill Family in Maryland.

Tradition has handed down from father to son the information that there was a large family of the Gills in Yorkshire, England, and this we can well believe when we scan the list of names which have carried through to present day, such as John, Stephen, Benjamin, Nicholas, William, George, Edward, Thomas, Charles, etc.

Benjamin was the first to come into Maryland from England, landed at St Mary's City 1642 (A B H 27) and with him came his daughter Anne, who married Capt. James Neal. Benjamin was granted 1000 acres of land on the Wicomico River in 1642 and 1220 acres in Charles County in 1646 for transporting persons. Benjamin died in 1655.

Stephen Gill, the first of our family in America from Yorkshire, England, arrived in 1659 (Lib. 7 f.461 H. Of R. Annapolis) and settled in Anne Arundel Co. We assume he was a brother of Benjamin, his wife's name Alice, and we find record of two sons, John d-1718 and Stephen d- 2-17-1734. John's first wife was named Sarah. They had one son Stephen Jr., who never married, died in 1724. Sarah died and John married Jane Bond.

the present Druid Hill Park. He also acquired more land further North in the vicinity of St. Thomas' P.E. Church, and a large tract as far North as Fowblesburg, called "Thomas Choice", but he continued to reside on the Parrish Range property. To Stephen and Elizabeth were born the following.

EARLY HISTORY OF DOVER METHODIST CHURCH

In 1808 a group of persons living in the vicinity met and formed the Society of Methodist (later Dover M. E. Church). Their ancestors were all either Episcopalians or members of the Society of Friends. Aquilla Parrish deeded to them four perches of land on which to build a school house and place of worship, but for no other use. This building was located about one-quarter mile East of the present church, between Dover and Butler. Mr. T. Frank King, now living and present Supt. of Dover Sunday School remembers as a boy playing in and around the building long after it was abandoned. Following is the names of persons, as head of each family, supposed to be charter members and these names appear on the deed dated May 6th 1808. William Ambrose, Hickman Johnson, Mordecai Parrish, Mordecai Belt, John Ambrose, John Kemp, Leonard Belt, Joseph Belt, Nicholas Gill of John, Joseph Cole, Joseph Osborn, Fayette Johnson, John Pitts, William Price, Shadrack Kemp, Charles Ambrose, Richard Belt, John Osborn, Joshua Kemp, Lewis Pitts, Stephen Gill of John, Stephen Gill of Nicholas, Thomas Cooper, Benjamin Parrish, Stephen Glanville, William Wooden, Elijah Wooden, James Dean, Brian Philpot and Milcah Belt, widow of Darby Belt. During the year 1833 Mr. Valentine Cross was class leader for the Society and he walked from Cockeysville to Dover meeting house for each meeting. The corner stone for the present church was prepared in 1842, the building was not completed very rapidly, and it was not until April 1st 1847 that a deed was given to the following persons as trustees: Daniel Bosley, Thomas C. Bosley, Samuel Worthington, Benjamin Wheeler, William Ebaugh, Benjamin Wheeler Jr., and Isaac Cole. This deed was given by Richard Johns, and while it has a few restrictions, it also leaves the property subject to the discipline of the Methodist Church. In 1865 additional land was given to enlarge the graveyard and at this time the trustees were Capt. Thomas Lucas, Nathan Belt, Daniel Emrick, Charles Wheeler, and Jacob Caples. On May 14th 1870 additional land was given by Mr. John T. Johns to complete the church holdings between the cemetery and public road.

Mrs. Mollie King, wife of T. Frank King is a Great, Great Grand-daughter of Shadrack Kemp and a Grand-daughter of John Kemp. James D. Gill is a Great, Great Grandson of Stephen Gill of John, also of William Ambrose, also Great Grandson of Charles Ambrose, which names are mentioned in the 1808 deed.

Until 1941 Dover Church was connected with the Hereford Circuit of the Methodist Church, but in that year it was transferred to the Glyndon charge. Having been connected with a large circuit it had the advantage of able preaching which no doubt accounts in part for its long uninterrupted career. Dover Church has two distinctive features not found at other churches, one a balcony in the rear for use of colored servants, in their time, and a mounting block atop of which ladies could mount their steeds for the home journey when side saddles were in vogue.

Following is some of the names of early ministers serving the Hereford Circuit and Dover Church. 1843 Rev. D. Steele and P. T. Wysong; 1844 Rev. T. H. W. Montoe and John MaCleary; 1847 Rev. Wm. Hauk and Chas. A. Reid; 1849 Rev. C. S. Young and J. W. Bull; 1853 Rev. J. A. Collins and L. D. Herron; 1854 Rev. J. H. Dashiell and Henry Sipes; 1855 Rev. John H. Dashiell and Edw. Kinsey; 1856 Rev. THE PROVINCE OF MARYLAND AND AVALON

1st Lord Baltimore George Calvert

2nd Lord Baltomer Cecil Calvert

3rd Lord Baltimore Charles Calvert

George Calvert, 1st Lord Baltimore, a resident of Yorkshire, England, built himself a thirty room house in 1625 in Yorkshire. The house was named Kiplin Hall. George Calvert had five sons and five daughters. George and his family embraced the Catholic faith and as a Catholic could not consistently take the oath of allegiance to the King, this fact caused him to resign his post of Secretary of State to King Charles I. During this period Catholics in England were very much persecuted, which caused George Calvert to search for a plan or place where all religions would be tolerated. He was interested in the London Company, which settled the Virginia Colony, but Catholics were not welcome in this Colony. George, on one of his trips to the Virginia Colony, inspected the shores of the Chesapeake Bay, and was very much impressed. He induced King Charles to take the territory from the Virginia Colony and give him a patent to the land. This was vigorously opposed by the Virginia Colony, but King Charles' wife Henrietta Marie, a French Princess, was a Catholic, and it is supposed her influence helped the King to decide in favor of a patent for the Province of Maryland to George Calvert, 1st Lord Baltimore, whose idea was to establish a land where all religions could worship God without molestation.

George died before the patent could be approved, but on June 26th, 1632, a charter for the Province of Maryland was granted to Cecil Calvert, 2nd Lord Baltimore and son of George Calvert. Cecil's wife was Lady Anne Arundel. After this date Cecil set about to prepare an expedition to take possession of the land granted him by the King. He issued a circular setting forth the advantages to be expected in the new land, and where possible he interviewed the applicants personally to determine their fitness and desirability for the venture. Two ships, the Ark and the Dove, were fitted out for the trip. Richard Lowe was master of the Ark, pay £5 sterling per month. John Gaines Gunner, pay £1.2 per month. Richard Orchard was master of the Dove. The Ark was a large ship built for the King's service and carried 24 guns, the Dove, a small boat used as a tender, carried four guns. During the period of preparation for the trip there arose a condition which prevented Cecil Calvert from making the journey, hence he sent his brother Leonard Calvert as head of the expedition. They weighed anchor at Cowes on the Isle of Wight Nov. 26th 1633 and were on their way with plenty of obstacles before them.

The Sea was infested with Turkish Pirates, and the time of the year could furnish plenty of rough weather. They were lucky enough to miss the pirates, who were in home ports celebrating the Holy month of Ramadan but the weather was exceptionally rough. The Ark and Dove became separated by storm and rough Sea and did not see each other for six weeks. The Ark reached the Barbadoes on Jan. 3rd, 1634 and had given the Dove up as lost in the storm when she pulled into the Barbadoes. The Dove had taken refuge from the storm in the Scilly Isles. They left together on January 24th, 1634 and arrived at Port Comfort, Va., where after taking on supplies and a Virginia interpreter, they proceeded on March 3rd, 1634 to St. Clements Island and the Potomac River. They left the Ark at St. Clements and proceeded up the River in the Dove, to Piscataway Town, where the Chief lived. Here they met and engaged Capt. Henry Fleet, an English trader, who had three boats of his own. He had lived several years among the Indians, spoke their language and was liked by them.

The Indians had been misinformed as to the intent of the expedition and when Leonard Calvert's company arrived they were met by 500 armed warriors. Fires burned at night in strategic places to notify other tribesmen, but when Capt. Fleet interceded for Leonard Calvert and the expedition, their fears were allayed. This made it easier for Leonard Calvert to negotiate with them, also the size of the Ark and Dove had quite a soothing effect on the Indians, as they figured to make a boat you must have a tree as large as the boat. After hearing the noise made by a gun when it saluted, and comparing it to the noise made by a bow and arrow, they concluded the expedition was great and mighty.

THE ARK AND THE DOVE

The Ark and the Dove were two ships which carried the first company of pioneers to settle the Province of Maryland. There were over two hundred on board, some of which were from the Gentlemen class to make the trip. A few of the ship's passengers became sick and died during the voyage. These were buried at Sea. Each person had to pay his passage or have some one pay for him, the charge being £20 sterling, which covered all expenses. If a man paid his own fare he was given 100 acres of land, if some one paid for him, the benefactor received 200 acres of land. Father White and Father John Altham accompanied the expedition and held the first mass at St. Clements Island, March 25th, 1634. The Piscataway Indians occupied the territory at St. Marys City. They agreed to sell 30 miles of territory to Leonard Calvert, also to allow him to occupy half their village and cultivate half their cleared land the first year. Their Chief, Tayac, had a dream that a missionary who loved him would confer a great blessing on him. The Chief became sick and his medicine men could not help him. Father White, who had considerable experience with sick people, took charge of the case and the Chief recovered. Tayac later adopted the Catholic faith.

There is a list of the passengers of the expedition and in 1910 a goodly number of descendants of this list met and founded The Society of the Ark and the Dove. Any person of good standing who can prove his line back to a passenger of the Ark and the Dove is eligible to membership. Not all Gills have a line back to the Ark and Dove list. There may be some yet unproven, but we know one line proven from Thomas Price, a passenger on the Ark and the Dove, as follows:

Thomas Price of England married Elizabeth Phillips at St. Marys City circa 1637, to them born among others one Thomas Price II.

Thomas Price II of St. Mary's County married Elizabeth Johnson, circa 1657, to them born one Mordecai Price.

Mordecai Price of Charles County married Mary Parsons, circa 1684, to them born, among others one John Price.

John Price of Anne Arundel Co. married Rebecca Merryman of Baltimore Co. about 1723 and to them born, among others, one Mary Price.

Mary Price of Baltimore Co. married John Parrish of same county January 30, 1744 and to them born, among others, one Elizabeth Parrish.

Elizabeth Parrish of Baltimore Co. married William Ambrose of same county June 1755 and to them born, among others, one Mary Ambrose.

Mary Ambrose of Baltimore Co. married Nicholas Gill of same county, Feb. 7th, 1807 and to them born, among others, one Didymus Gill.

Didymus Gill of Baltimore County married Ann Ambrose of Baltimore Co., January 24th, 1843 and to them born, among others, one R. Stephen Gill.

Anne Gill, daughter of Benjamin Gill, came to Maryland with her father in 1642. Benjamin received 1000 acres for transporting five persons and this land was located on the North side of the Wicomico River. John Neal owned a plantation on the South Side of the river. His son, Capt. James Neal married Anne Gill. The records tell us she was maid of honor to Queen Henrietta Marie, and when Anne's first child was born, a girl, she named it Henrietta Marie Neal, they took the child to England to be christened and Queen Henrietta Marie was God Mother.

After the death of Benjamin Gill it developed that Benjamin had not filed claim for all the land due him and Cecilius Calvert wrote his brother, Governor Leonard Calvert to see that Benjamin's heirs received the land coming to him for warrants held.

Gill Family in England

Record of the Gill family in England goes back to the eleventh century when Bueth Gill is mentioned. He was killed during the Norman invasion. There is a continuous but unconnected record of Gills all down through the years. Some of them served their Government with distinction and there is record of six separate Crests issued to Gills in England for service rendered. These cannot at this late date be identified or assigned to any particular family, but one can look back with family pride on such occasions. Some efforts have been made by persons in the family to get the English record but time and expense has made this impractical at this late date.
